Project SEARCH holds Graduation Ceremony for Interns

Sitting at the graduation ceremony for Southwestern Community College's Project SEARCH program, you couldn't help but catch the contagious smile that was across all four of the interns' beaming faces as they walked down the aisle to the traditional graduation procession, and again as they all danced at the end of the ceremony to one of their favorite songs.

"This was a strong group of interns who came into the program with specific goals and dreams, and the program helped solidify the steps they needed to take to reach those goals," said Devonne Jimison, Project SEARCH coordinator and instructor.

This program allows students with a vast range of disabilities to transition from school into a work environment.

The four interns, along with Ned Baddy of Cullowhee who completed two internships and moved into supported employment, have worked very hard and overcome many obstacles to get where they are now.

Furman Smith, father of intern Thomas Smith of Cherokee, spoke about how Project SEARCH had given them hope for their son's future when they were told it would be bleak.

Katherine Lancaster, a 2016 graduate of Project SEARCH, served as the keynote speaker and spoke about Project SEARCH giving her confidence in herself and how much she loves her job at Bogarts in Sylva.

"The graduates now have transferable skills they learned throughout the year that would make them valuable employees within our 3 county area," said Jimison. "The skills include stocking, janitorial, kitchen work and prep, dishwashing, patient aide and customer service skills."

For businesses interested in interviewing one of the interns, or for more information about Project SEARCH, contact Jimison at 828.339.4486 or devonnej@southwesterncc.edu.

SCC holds Graduation Ceremony for BLET Class #75

For BLET (Basic Law Enforcement Training) Class #75 graduate Conner Wilson of Sylva, the reason he chose the program at Southwestern Community College was not because he had heard it was easy.

"The reason I chose the BLET program at SCC was because I knew from its reputation that it was one of the harder BLET programs available and I would get the best possible training," said Wilson. "While the first part was mainly classroom time, once we got past our midterms is when the hands-on training really began. I will say that being pepper-sprayed was one of the worst experiences I ever had, but it is part of the intense training you receive at SCC to get you ready for this job."

The North Carolina BLET is a state-accredited program designed to prepare entry-level individuals with the cognitive and physical skills to become certified police officers and deputy sheriffs.

Wilson, along with the other five graduates, James Bethea of Franklin, Hunter Gass, Sylva; Jesse Henkel, Dillsboro; Austin Hill, Robbinsville; and Anthony Momphard Jr. Whittier; were honored during a graduation ceremony held on June 20 at the Jerry Sutton Public Safety Training Center in Franklin.

"It's always an honor and privilege to work with individuals who are seeking positions within the public safety field," said Curtis Dowdle, dean of public safety training. "BLET Class #75 is a dedicated group of individuals who will serve their communities to the best of their ability. Four of the six have already proven that by serving our country in various branches of the military. We at Southwestern Community College's division of public safety training are proud of BLET Class #75 and all of their accomplishments."

After the certificates were given, Dowdle asked the law enforcement representatives from the surrounding counties if they had any advice for the latest generation of law enforcement officers.

The resounding words of encouragement were to find a mentor to push and encourage them and to rely on one another as they are now part of a brother/sisterhood that spanned across departments and county lines.

The graduates began to have an understanding of this unique bond during their time at SCC as Hunter Gass spoke about the comradery of the group and Wilson added that they had all grown really close in the more than 700 hours of training they completed together.

For more information call 828.306.7041 or visit www.southwesterncc.edu/pstc.
