COLLEGE VISION, MISSION AND GOALS

Vision

Southwestern Community College will be an educational gateway for enriching lives and strengthening our community.

Mission

Southwestern Community College is a learning and teaching institution offering high-quality, innovative instruction and support, which promotes student achievement, academic excellence and economic development.

Goals

The College Will...

1. Provide excellence in learning and teaching for transfer and career education, literacy development, business and industry training and lifelong learning in an accessible format (including face to face, blended, and distance learning).
2. Maintain a nurturing learning environment by providing comprehensive support and intervention services for every individual.
3. Identify, acquire and maintain college resources to support the vision, mission and goals of the college.
4. Attract and retain quality employees and provide for their professional development.
5. Foster cooperative community-based relationships which contribute to the cultural, economic, and educational advancement of the region.
6. Assess institutional effectiveness as part of the planning and renewal process based on continuous improvement principles.
7. Prepare citizens to live, learn and work in a diverse global village.
8. Increase community awareness of college programs and services.

Looking Back

Founded in 1964, Southwestern Community takes pride in a history characterized by community involvement and collaboration resulting in excellent educational opportunities for the people of Jackson, Macon and Swain counties, the Qualla Boundary and beyond. Significantly, these educational opportunities have brought economic, personal and cultural benefits to the region and its people.

On December 1, 1964, the Jackson County Industrial Education Center officially opened with 60 students enrolled in full-time classes and 133 students signed up for short-term courses. Since that time, the College has evolved from an industrial education center to a technical institute to a technical college and finally to a fully-accredited community college. During that evolution, Southwestern has awarded more than 13,000 degrees, diplomas and certificates and has offered thousands of different classes.

Throughout its history, SCC has responded to and anticipated the educational needs of the community and region, offering an ever-widening range of programs through which students prepare for the job market, transfer to senior institutions, and achieve professional and personal goals.

On the Grow

Today, SCC offers a wide range of curriculum programs in Arts and Sciences, Career Technologies, College Transfer and Health Sciences. In addition, the college provides a variety of Continuing Education courses at various locations throughout its service area. Most of these courses are designed to prepare students for entry into an occupation, upgrade skills of employed individuals, and provide opportunities for self-improvement.

The expansion of such programs over the years has grown hand in hand with a growth in physical facilities, the number of students the College serves and in the College's role in the region.

The Jackson campus has grown from one to eight buildings that house classrooms, administrative offices, an auditorium, and a library. SCC also has facilities in the service area that include: a Macon Campus; the Public Safety Training Complex, Business and Industry Training Center in Macon County; the SCC Table Gaming School on the Qualla Boundary; and the Swain County Center at Almond which also houses the SCC Small Business Center. Partnering with the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians and Western Carolina University, Southwestern developed the Oconaluftee Institute of Cultural Arts on the Qualla Boundary.

Always at the forefront of computer technology, SCC provides top notch computer support for students and employees with more than 1000 computers networked. The College has 25 computer labs for various curriculum programs and an open computer lab in the Library. In addition, the College has initiated online learning offerings for curriculum and continuing education offerings and put in place an infrastructure to the public schools and other community partners.

Community Partnership & Fundraising

To support these educational services, the College receives county, state and federal funding. To augment this funding and provide for extensive services, during the past three decades, SCC has sought and received more than $22.5 million in grant money. These funds have included federal construction grants, Appalachian Regional Commission grants, US Department of Education grants, New Century Scholars, basic education grants and a variety of other sources. In 2005 SCC received the largest grant in its history, a $5.9 million grant from the U.S. Department of Education. These funds are directed to public schools in the college's three-county service area for GEAR UP (Gaining Awareness and Readiness for Undergraduate Programs). The SCC program is designed to increase the number of income eligible students in Macon, Swain and Jackson counties and the Qualla Boundary who are prepared to enter and succeed in postsecondary education.

Also, the SCC Foundation, Inc., incorporated in 1973, strives to provide support for needs not covered by public funds or grant monies. Over the years, the Foundation has made significant contributions to the College in student scholarships, equipment donations and in capital improvements. In addition, many individuals and businesses have contributed to Foundation for specific needs.

Of course, SCC's primary purpose is to provide educational opportunities to students who enroll in courses and programs at the College. Additionally, the College has always believed it had a broader responsibility to the community and the people of the region at large. While this has been characteristic of the College since 1964, it was never more evident than when the College took a leadership role to bring the latest in technology and training to our rural region.

In 2003 SCC became a participant in an effort to make high-speed affordable Internet access a reality in the region. Known as BalsamWest Fiber NET, the high-speed fiber optic network ensures that southwestern North Carolina can participate fully in a global economy by providing open and affordable access to this state-of-the art infrastructure.

In the same spirit that led to the birth of Balsam West FibertNET, SCC trustees and foundation board members, president, instructors and staff strive to reach out through collaborations and partnerships to enrich the lives of the people of the region.

Southwestern's success with students was recognized nationwide in 2007 when the college was ranked fourth in the nation in a first-ever listing of America's best community colleges.

New Era

Southwestern Community College experienced a change in administration in 2010 when President Cecil Groves retired after leading the college for 13 years. Citing his dedication to the community and his legacy of regional growth, Jackson County Commissioners proclaimed his retirement day as "Dr. Cecil Groves Day." The SCC Board of Trustees awarded him the title of President Emeritus.

Dr. Richard Collings followed Dr. Groves as president in 2010.

In 2011, Dr. Don Tomas succeeded Dr. Collings. Shortly after arriving, Dr. Tomas and SCC launched "Vision 2017" - a long-range strategic planning process. The college has continued to grow and seek out new ways of serving - and partnering with - the communities in Jackson, Macon, Swain Counties and the Qualla Boundary.

2010

- President Cecil Groves, who retired after leading the college for 13 years, was awarded the title of President Emeritus.
- SCC was once again ranked at the top in Washington Monthly's ranking of community colleges.
- SCC was one of only 11 colleges to earn an exceptional rating by the NC Community College System.
- May's graduating class of 264 was the largest graduating class to date.
- Summer enrollment was up 44 percent.
- Several new programs and initiatives were launched including the Plus 50 program, sustainability technologies and wilderness therapy.
- The first class of SCC newly-approved independent associate degree in nursing included 26 members.
- Jackson County Early College students and staff moved into their new building on the Jackson Campus.
- Several new teaching stations were installed on the Jackson Campus.
- A new phone system, employing the BalsamWest FiberNET technology, was implemented.
- The Oconaluftee Institute of Cultural Arts in Cherokee received a new letterpress that will print the Cherokee syllabary.
- SCC received $100,000 from the Appalachian Regional Commission to fund critical instructional equipment and supplies for "green" education and training.

2011

- Dr. Don Tomas was selected as the college's sixth president. Dr. Tomas previously served as Vice President of Instruction at Weatherford College in Weatherford, Texas.
- SCC embarked upon a long-range strategic planning process to chart a course for the college during the next five years. This planning process was named Vision 2017.
- Terry Bell of Otto was appointed chairman of SCC's Board of Trustees, following Conrad Burrell who served as chair for 11 years.

- Ground was broken for the Burrell Building, a new facility on the Jackson Campus.
- SCC was one of only 12 colleges to earn an exceptional rating by the NC Community College System.
- Dr. Thom Brooks was named Vice President for Instruction and Student Services and Scott Baker assumed Brooks' former role as Dean of Career Technologies.
- Southwestern's Emergency Medical Science (EMS) program received national accreditation, making it one of only two nationally-accredited programs among EMS programs in North Carolina community colleges.
- Southwestern's National Park Service Seasonal Law Enforcement Ranger Training program became only the second program of this type among community colleges to become accredited as an NPS-SLET academy.
- The Honors Program at Southwestern continued to gain partnerships as agreements were signed with North Carolina State University, the University of North Carolina-Charlotte, and the University of North Carolina-Wilmington.
- Faculty and staff at the Schatz Energy Research Center at Humboldt State University in northern California custom built a hydrogen fuel cell power box for SCC's Electronics and Computer Engineering Technology students. Southwestern is the only community college to receive one of these.
- Southwestern's Automotive Engine Performance II class began making biodiesel fuel, using cooking oil from the college's culinary arts kitchen.

2012

- The Vision 2017 Strategic Planning initiative was finalized, resulting in 8 goals and 35 strategies that will position the college for success over the next five years.
- The Burrell Building was completed in 2012, with the official dedication held in July, 2012. The new facility features classrooms, a student bookstore, administrative and faculty offices, and a conference center.
- SCC was one of only 16 colleges to achieve an exceptional rating by the NC Community College System. This represents the fourth time in the past five years that SCC achieved this designation.
- Deanne Oppermann, chemistry faculty member at Southwestern, was selected by the North Carolina Community College System as the Outstanding Faculty Member for 2012.
- As a component of its Title III grant, the college embarked on a major capital campaign to create an endowment for student scholarships. The goal is to create a $1 million endowment.
- The Honors Program at Southwestern added four additional partnerships in 2012, bringing the total number to nine. New agreements signed in 2012 included Mars Hill College, the University of North Carolina-Asheville, the University of North Carolina-Greensboro, and the University of North Carolina-Pembroke.
- SCC completed its Fifth Year Report as required by the Commission on Colleges.
- SCC received a new letterpress that will print the Cherokee syllabary.
- SCC received $100,000 from the Appalachian Regional Commission to fund critical instructional equipment and supplies for "green" education and training.
- Community College Week identified Southwestern as the highest growth rate among the 58 community colleges in North Carolina, the 26th highest among all community colleges nationwide, and the 2nd highest among our national sector of colleges (2500-5000).

2013

- SCC established the Nantahala School for Arts, located at the Swain Center.
- SCC Board of Trustees approved a new College logo in January, 2013.
- SCC provided Live Dealer Gaming training for Harrah's Cherokee Casino.
- Extensive renovations were made to the Student Services area of the Balsam Center.
- The Board of Trustees gave approval to move forward with the development of a facility master plan to address future expansion at the Macon Campus and the Public Safety Training Center.
- SCC established a Fire & Rescue Training Academy at the Public Safety Training Center.
- SCC Leadership was invited to present our Honors Program model at the three most prestigious national conferences for community colleges: American Association of Community Colleges; Association of Community College Trustees; and League of Innovation for Community Colleges.

- Fine and heritage arts program coordinator Jeff Marley was selected by the Sequoyah National Research Center for its 2013 Art Fellowship. Marley also completed his Master in Fine Arts through the low-residency program at Vermont College of Fine Arts.
- In March, the Jackson County Board of Commissioners officially adopted a new county flag that was designed by SCC student Jessica Waldron.
- More than $1.5 million in grant funds were secured from Golden Leaf Foundation and Duke Energy. The money will be used for advanced manufacturing and robotics training as well as to enhance SCC's computer engineering technology and electronics/electrical technology programs.
- The Medical Laboratory Technology classroom underwent an extensive renovation that provides students with more efficient workstations.
- Shuttered 12 years ago due to changes in Medicare funding, the occupational therapy assistant program was reinstated at Southwestern and will resume in the fall of 2014.
- Danielle Shomper and Cathy Huntsman became the first students to enroll in the Regionally Increasing Baccalaureate Nurses (RIBN) educational track, which assures them a spot in Western Carolina University's bachelor's degree program so long as they fulfill all necessary requirements while working toward their associate's degrees at SCC.
- Rowan Stuart, an SCC and Jackson County Early College student, won the junior women's division at the ICF Canoe World Championships in September at the Nantahala Outdoor Center.

2014

- A design by Elizabeth Hammer was selected in April to serve as SCC's official 50th anniversary logo throughout the 2014-15 academic year. Hammer graduated from SCC's advertising and graphic design program in May.
- Competing mostly against veteran teams at the statewide Wake Tech Culinary Arts Showcase, SCC's first-time competitors C.J. Reum and Scott Dolbee made the final round and ended up placing fourth out of 11 teams.
- The automotive systems technology program received a Master Automobile Service Technology accreditation – the highest level of achievement recognized by the National Automotive Technician Education Foundation (NATEF).
- For the second straight year, SCC was among a handful of institutions statewide to exceed the North Carolina Community College System average in seven or more of the eight measures used to gauge annual performance.
- A series of three political debates were held at the Jackson Campus. Students in Dr. Bucky Dann's Social Problems class asked questions of candidates for the Jackson County Board of Commissioners, N.C. House and N.C. Senate.
- The Student Success Campaign, the most ambitious fundraising effort in SCC's history – reached its Phase 1 goal and allowed the college to fully leverage a Title III grant from the U.S. Department of Education, which matched 100 percent of all donations made by Sept. 2014. With more than $600,000 in the bank, the campaign now aims to surpass the $1 million mark – allowing the SCC Foundation to support student success at an unprecedented level.
- Tiffany Henry, director of SCC's Small Business Center, was named Rookie of the Year by North Carolina's Small Business Center Network after serving more than 800 clients.
- U.S. Congressman Mark Meadows and other elected officials joined representatives from virtually every industry, community and school system in the college's service area for a ribbon cutting in November at SCC's new Advanced Manufacturing Training facility in Swain County. Baxter, a state-of-the-art Robot Training System, snipped the ribbon at the facility that received support through the Golden LEAF Foundation.
- Second-year students in Southwestern Community College's respiratory therapy program won the state's Gladiator competition and posted North Carolina's highest finish (fourth) ever at the national contest in December in Las Vegas.

2015

- A crowd of approximately 500 turned out for SCC's 50th anniversary open house celebration on April 10 at the Jackson Campus. Karena Mason of Franklin won the grand prize of a full-year scholarship, which was made possible through the generosity of faculty and staff with support from the SCC Foundation.
- The largest graduating class in SCC's history was honored in a pair of May commencement ceremonies. A total of 440 students earned associate degrees, certificates and/or diplomas.
- The "Bluegrass, Blue Jeans and Bling" gala raised more than $51,000 to support student scholarships in July. All funds raised went into the SCC Foundation's Student Success Campaign, which aims to raise more than $1 million.
- WalletHub named SCC one of the Top 10 community colleges in the nation. The No. 7 ranking marked the third time in nine years SCC has been placed among the Top 10 nationally (Washington Monthly in 2007 and 2010).
- A $1.4 million grant from NASA in October pushed SCC's grant award total for 2015-16 to more than $3.5 million. SCC took the lead role in securing the NASA grant on behalf of its partners in the Smoky Mountain STEM Collaborative: the Jackson, Macon, Swain County and Cherokee Central school systems; Appalachian State University; Great Smoky Mountains National Park; NASA Marshall Space Center; and Pisgah Astronomical Research Institute.
- A statewide study revealed that the college's overall impact on its service area of Jackson, Macon, Swain Counties and the Qualla Boundary is $126.9 million in added regional income.
- A record number of employers (75) participated in the college's 21st annual Job Fair.
- Thanks to the generosity of faculty and staff, SCC was able to give away a one-year, tuition-and-fees scholarship in addition to other prizes at its 50th anniversary open house celebration, which drew roughly 500 people to the Jackson Campus on April 10.

2016

- Jackson County voters passed the one-fourth of a penny referendum, which will benefit SCC and the Jackson County Public Schools. The first major project funded through this initiative will be Southwestern's new health sciences building.
- A group of U.S. Marines traveled to SCC from Camp Lejeune for wildland fire chainsaw safety training in October.
- Southwestern received more than $525,000 from the Appalachian Regional Commission for its "Pathways to Employment, Education and Training for Automotive and Related Industries" program in Jackson, Macon and Swain Counties.
- For the second straight election cycle, Students in Dr. Bucky Dann's "Social Problems" class asked questions of candidates for state and county office during a series of three political debates held on our Jackson Campus.
- During the 2016-17 academic year, Southwestern completed the SACSCOC reaccreditation process.
- Students in SCC's respiratory therapy program successfully defended their state title in a hands-on Gladiator competition in February. Earlier in the academic year, the team of Jay Cleary, Matt Hixon, Chase Souza and Kasey Wilson won the statewide "Sputum Bowl" quiz contest then placed fourth in the national competition – matching the success of the 2014-15 SCC team. Under program coordinator Samantha Campbell and clinical coordinator Brent Holland, the respiratory therapy program improved to 4-0 at statewide competitions.
- Voters easily passed the Connect NC bond initiative, providing $7.1 million for SCC to use on construction, renovation and repair projects.

- As the only community college in the nation to have a cooperative science agreement with NASA, SCC led the way in preparing our communities for the total eclipse on Aug. 21.
- As the 2016-17 academic year drew to a close, the SCC Foundation approached its goal of setting up the college's first $1 million endowment to be used primarily for student scholarships. As of May 22, SCC was less than $70,000 away from completing the March To a Million for the Student Success Campaign.
- Thanks to funding from Golden LEAF Foundation, The Cannon Foundation and a gift from TekTone Sound & Signal, a new Health Sciences Simulation Lab opened in March. Health Sciences students can complete a significant portion of their clinical experience in this lab.

- Students in the Mechatronics Engineering Technology program built a SWAT robot that they donated to the Macon County Sheriff's office. This device could very well save lives someday in the future.
- Southwestern hosted its largest-ever job fair in March. Approximately 300 job-seekers were on campus to meet with more than 95 employers. The event was coordinated by Mike Despeaux, director of career services, who worked with newly hired career counselor Jodi Waldroup to hold a pair of smaller "Job Fair Fridays" in April.

Southwestern Community College offers more than 103 credential options in more than 44 programs of study that are designed to suit a wide range of interests. Southwestern is committed to quality programs that prepare students for employment or transfer to four-year institutions.

The capacity/enrollment ratio, often referred to as the C/E ratio, is the amount of instructional and library space on campus divided by the total fall term student clock hours of that institution. The C/E ratio relates the amount of space directly used in an institution's instructional programs to the instructional activity of the campus. It is one of the most commonly used indices of instructional utilization of institutional facilities. In analyzing and comparing the capacity/enrollment ratios, it should be kept in mind that a relatively low ratio generally indicates a high level of space utilization. It should also be noted, however, that such factors as the level of an institution and the kind of instructional programs that it offers will affect the amount of space required and, therefore, the C/E ratio.

Note 1: Microfilm collection was replaced by online collections.

Note 2: The following outdated categories were removed from this list in 2012-13: diskettes, slides, film-strips, sound film strips, kits, and audio tapes.

Note 3: There is a very different figure for NC LIVE documents. This is different because the NC LIVE content vendors all changed due to a contract update between these two years. Therefore, statistics are collected in a different manner than they were in 2014-15. NC LIVE operates on a 3-year contract with database vendors, and therefore, the usage statistics will not be consistent outside of these 3-year periods.

KEY SOURCES OF STATISTICAL INFORMATION AVAILABLE ON THE INTERNET

Federal Agencies

www.census.gov/

This site is the homepage for the United States Census Bureau. While primarily recognized as the official site for population data, the Census Bureau also is a source for a wide variety of demographic, housing and socio-economic data. This site provides access to the extensive amount of information collected for the 2000 and 2010 decennial censuses (with data available from the national level down to the census tract level). In addition, this site contains data from the Current Population Series (data is primarily at the national and state geographic level) and from the various Economic Censuses which are released every five years.

www.bea.gov/

This site is the homepage for the Bureau of Economic Analysis of the United States Department of Commerce. This site includes a variety of income data, including per capita income estimates. The geography level for this data ranges from national down to the county level.

State Agencies

sdc.state.nc.us/

This site is the homepage for the North Carolina Office of State Budget and Management. This site includes profiles for all North Carolina counties which include data on a variety of areas (such as population, employment, income, etc.). This office is responsible for developing population projections for the state and all 100 counties.

www.desncc.com

This site is the homepage for the Employment Security Commission of the North Carolina Department of Commerce. This site includes a variety of employment and labor force information, including the monthly unemployment rate. The level of geography for data at this site ranges from the State of North Carolina down to the county level.

www.ncpublicschools.org/fbs/resources/data/

This site is maintained by the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction and includes a variety of data on the various public school systems in North Carolina. Recent editions of the North Carolina Public Schools Statistical Profile are available at this site.
