SCC's Health Sciences Center

Will be ready for students this fall

As workers apply the last few coats of paint and other finishing touches this summer, Southwestern Community College officials are making sure everything's ready to open their new Health Sciences Center to students this fall on the Jackson Campus.

Furniture and equipment are being moved in throughout the warmer months, and faculty members are setting up their classrooms, labs and offices.

By the time the new school year begins on Aug. 16, SCC will be able to accept 144 more health sciences students than it could have a year ago. Existing programs are able to take additional students, and two new programs are being added: Surgical Technology and Opticianry, pending SACSCOC approval.

"From the time we first began planning for this new building, our goal has always been to offer more opportunities for our students – and to provide more skilled healthcare graduates to fill the growing workforce needs in our service area," said Dr. Don Tomas, SCC President. "It's a beautiful structure, and I'm especially excited for the first group of students who get to utilize this new instructional facility."

Led by founding program coordinator Melissa Daniels-Dolan, Surgical Technology will be housed in the center of the new structure's third floor. The top level will also house Medical Laboratory Technology, Medical Assisting, an Anatomy & Physiology lab and faculty offices.

The second floor is home to the latest medical-training technology in SCC's expanded simulation lab as well as Nursing, Radiography, Respiratory Therapy and Medical Sonography programs.

Meanwhile, the ground level will host several community clinics such as Physical Therapy and Occupational Therapy. The Emergency Medical Science program – with a full-size simulation ambulance – will also be on the first floor.

Opticianry - along with existing programs like Health Information Technology, Human Services Technology and Nurse Aide – will have plenty of breathing room in remodeled sections of the Balsam Center.

Therapeutic Massage will maintain its same serene lab in Founders Hall while Outdoor Leadership, with its Wilderness Emergency Medicine and Wilderness Therapy options, will remain at SCC's Swain Center.

The Health Sciences division offers several programs in which students are eligible to seek admission. These programs are competitive and enroll a limited number of students each fall.

Students who are interested in seeking admission to these programs should contact the Health Sciences Division Office at 828.339.4305 for details.

NEW HyFlex Technology

Allows hybrid classes to continue

Many are breathing a sigh of relief as normalcy begins to return, and students eagerly await their return to traditional classes.

For those who may still be anxious, however, Southwestern Community College is offering opportunities to pursue their education from the comfort of students' homes so that they may feel safe.

This fall, SCC instructors will be offering courses through HyFlex, a course delivery system where instructors teach on campus while students attend class remotely.

While SCC will still be returning to normal functions, this new method gives students the option to attend class in a way that feels safest for them.

Every semester after classes begin, SCC offers a selection of courses to allow new students an opportunity to enroll and current students can increase their courseload.

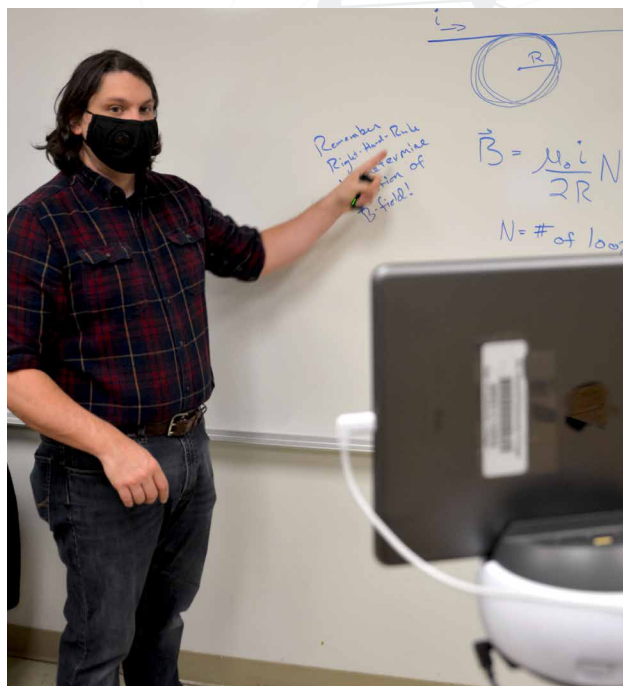

"The events of the last year reminded us of everyday challenges that can make completing your education harder than it should be," said SCC's Dean of Teaching and Learning Support Bethany Emory. "HyFlex and Enroll Anytime classes are designed to make it a little easier for students to accomplish their educational goals."

A camera and microphone will track instructor as they teach, allowing students to learn in real time and access recordings at a later time.

SCC's E-Learning Department will be providing support to ensure that the technology works properly and the instructors can use it at its full potential.

For more information about HyFlex, contact Emory at b_emory@southwesterncc.edu or 828.339.4261.
