TOMAS FAMILY ENDOWS Scholarship at SCC

In his role as president of Southwestern Community College, Dr. Don Tomas has seen up close the impact a hand up can have on students as they work toward college degrees.

That's the main reason he and his wife, Allison, are setting up the Allison and Don Tomas Endowed Scholarship Fund In Memory of Amy Du-Bose McGehee and William Joseph Tomas through the SCC Foundation.

"Southwestern is a unique college where many amazing people pursue their dreams," said Dr. Tomas, who became president in 2011. "This college has become very special to Allison and me over the years, and we want to extend a hand up to help future students achieve their educational goals."

It's the first time an SCC president has set up an endowed scholarship while in office. Full-time students accepted into one of SCC's Health Sciences programs, including the WNC RIBN Nursing Program, are eligible to apply for the scholarship.

"Don and I both lost a sibling during our childhood years, so we decided to endow this scholarship in memory of his brother William and my sister Amy," Allison Tomas said. "They remain close to our hearts, and it is an honor naming this endowment in their memories."

During Dr. Tomas' tenure, the SCC Foundation has grown exponentially to assist more students than ever. Toward the end of his first year as president, SCC was only able to award $23,000 in scholarship assistance. This year, SCC awarded a record $191,000 to 164 scholarship recipients.

southwesterncc.edu.

the Tomas family has done, contact Brett Woods at 828.339.4241 or b_woods@

The SCC Foundation's assets have more than doubled (from $3.3 million to $7.6 million) in Dr. Tomas' time at Southwestern, and the college has nearly tripled the number of endowed scholarships (from 21 to 59) over the same span.

To reach endowed status, a scholarship fund at SCC must reach a threshold of at least $15,000.

Allison Tomas has also taken on an active role with the SCC Foundation and has been a part of the annual fundraising gala's planning committee every year since the event's inception in 2014.

That event alone has raised more than $500,000 over the years.

"Dr. and Mrs. Tomas have always placed fundraising for student scholarships at the top of their priority list," said Brett Woods, Director of the SCC Foundation. "It is a privilege to serve in this capacity with a leader who wholeheartedly embraces the value of supporting student success through scholarships."

SCC chosen to compete for prestigious national award

Southwestern Community College is one of 150 institutions nationwide that have been selected to compete for part of a prestigious $1 million grant from the Aspen Institute.

SCC President Don Tomas was informed in November of 2021 that Southwestern is among six community colleges in North Carolina that are eligible for the 2023 Aspen Prize for Community College Excellence, which recognizes schools with high and improving levels of student success.

A former U.S. President once referred to the Aspen Prize as "basically the Oscars for great Community Colleges." Awarded every other year, the Aspen Prize aims to celebrate excellence, advance a focus on equitable student success and stimulate replication of effective culture and practice.

"The Aspen Prize is probably one of the highest honors of achievement for community college excellence in the nation," Dr. Tomas said. "We're all very proud that the Aspen Institute selected Southwestern as one of the institutions eligible to compete for the 2023 award. Our faculty and staff always put students first, and we are focused on student success, so it's very gratifying when organizations like the Aspen Institute recognize the good work SCC is doing in the communities we serve."

Selected from a pool of more than 1,000 community colleges in the nation – including 58 in North Carolina – Southwestern was invited in the fall of 2021 to submit data and narratives for two years as part of an intensive data and practice review process.

In mid-February of 2022, SCC was selected as a semi-finalist to participate in the next round of interviews.

A group of 10 finalists will be selected this spring or summer before the winning institutions are named in the late spring of 2023.

A college from North Carolina has yet to crack the Top 10 going back to the award's genesis in 2011.

"Leaders of exceptional community colleges understand that achieving excellence requires expanding college access and increasing degree completion, but it doesn't stop there," said Josh Wyner, Executive Director of the Aspen Institute College Excellence Program. "They are committed to ensuring that all students—including students of color and those from low-income backgrounds—graduate with the skills needed to secure a job with family-sustaining wages or successfully transfer to and graduate from a university."

This selection is the latest national recognition for Southwestern, which has been ranked among the country's Top 10 community colleges six times in the last 14 years – including an overall No. 1 ranking by BestColleges.com in 2020.
